Firm Fined, Individuals Sanctioned

Cambridge Legacy Securities, L.L.C. (CRD® #103722, Dallas, Texas), Oran Ben Carroll (CRD #1295071, Registered Principal, Granbury, Texas), and Russell Kent Childs (CRD #1192883, Registered Principal, Spring, Texas) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured, fined $50,000 and ordered to pay $21,864.74, plus interest, in restitution to customers. Carroll was fined $25,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any principal capacity for three months. Childs was fined $25,000, suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for nine months and ordered to pay $412,724.28, plus interest, in restitution to customers. If the firm fails to provide proof of restitution within 15 days, it shall be immediately suspended from FINRA membership until proof has been provided. If Childs fails to provide proof of restitution within 15 days, he shall be immediately suspended from association with any member firm in any capacity until proof has been provided.

Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm, Carroll and Childs consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm, acting through Carroll, its president and registered principal, failed to adequately implement a supervisory system designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws and regulations; specifically, the firm and Carroll failed to implement an adequate system to supervise a branch office's activities in light of deficiencies identified during branch audits, and failed to appoint a properly qualified principal to supervise the branch office's activities. The findings stated that the firm allowed Carroll and Childs to accept, and they did accept, a gift and/or gratuity in excess of $100 from the president and general partner of an entity that offered an alternative investment product, and Childs sold almost $6 million of that product to customers at the firm's branch office. The findings also stated that the firm failed to properly maintain its email communications and, acting through Carroll, failed to have a procedure in place to ensure that his own email, which was designated as legal and confidential, was properly maintained and reviewed. The findings also included that the firm failed to establish and maintain an adequate supervisory system in the areas of internal communications and correspondence.

Reported for September 2010

FINRA® has taken disciplinary actions against the following firms and individuals for violations of FINRA rules; federal securities laws, rules and regulations; and the rules of the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board (MSRB).

FINRA found that the firm charged both commissions and advisory fees on transactions in alternative investment products whose offering documents specifically prohibited such activity; Childs charged customers commissions, in the amount of $434,589.03, and an annual percentage-based advisory fee on transactions in alternative investments. FINRA also found that Childs made unsuitable recommendations to customers and had no reasonable basis for believing that his recommendations of non-liquid alternative investments were suitable for the customers in light of their age, financial needs, annual income, liquid net worth and risk tolerance.

Carroll's suspension is in effect from August 2, 2010, through November 1, 2010; and Childs' suspension is in effect from August 2, 2010, through May 1, 2011. (FINRA Case #2007010684401)

Firms Fined

Assent LLC (CRD #104162, Hoboken, New Jersey) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $79,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it permitted a then-proprietary trader and associated person to engage in proprietary firm options trading when he was not properly licensed to do so and, as a result, the firm failed to register a person engaged in its investment banking or securities business in the category of registration appropriate to the function to be performed as specified in NASD[®] Rule 1032. The findings stated that the firm's written supervisory procedures required all proprietary traders to possess the Series 7 general securities representative license and Series 55 equity traders limited representative license (and Series 63 qualification), and provided for no exceptions unless approvals were obtained and the trader's activities were restricted until the licensing deficiency was rectified; the associated person possessed none of the licenses required by the firm nor were activities restricted. The findings also stated that, as a result, the firm failed to enforce its written supervisory procedures by allowing the associated person to disregard FINRA licensing requirements and the firm's internal licensing requirements applicable to its proprietary traders. The findings also included that the firm failed to enforce written internal firm trading limits that applied to the associated person by failing to enforce its written supervisory procedures concerning the imposition of individual trading limits on proprietary traders; the firm failed to take adequate steps to ensure the associated person and other relevant associated persons of the firm understood the meaning and application of the terms of the associated person's individual trading limits, and allowed the associated person to exceed his individual trading limits on several occasions. (FINRA Case #2007008882402)

The Benchmark Company, LLC (CRD #22982, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $35,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed to report information regarding transactions effected in municipal securities to the Real-time Transaction Reporting System (RTRS) within 15 minutes of Time of Trade to an RTRS Portal. The findings also stated that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws, regulations and MSRB rules concerning MSRB reporting. The findings included that the firm failed to report the correct execution time to the RTRS in reports of transactions in municipal securities. The findings also included that the firm accepted short sale orders in an equity security from another person, or effected short sales in an equity security for its own account, without borrowing the security, or entering into a bona fide arrangement to borrow the security, or without having reasonable grounds to believe that the security could be borrowed so that it could be delivered on the date delivery is due; and documenting compliance with SEC Rule 203(b)(1) of Regulation SHO.

FINRA found that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws, regulations and FINRA rules addressing quality of market topics, in that the firm's written supervisory procedures failed to provide for minimum requirements for adequate written supervisory procedures in order marking, and locate rule and trade report input. FINRA also found that in transactions for or with a customer, the firm failed to use reasonable diligence to ascertain the best inter-dealer market and buy and sell in such market so that the resultant price to its customer was as favorable as possible under prevailing market conditions. (FINRA Case #2009016220901)

Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed to maintain and preserve all of its business-related electronic communications. The findings stated that the firm engaged a third-party vendor to preserve such communications, but the vendor did not properly retain the electronic communications and ultimately purged virtually all of the electronic communications it had initially captured for the firm. The findings also stated that the firm did not otherwise preserve all of its business-related electronic communications and emails deleted from the firm's computers were not retained. (FINRA Case #2008011683801)

Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed to obtain FINRA's approval before initiating increases in sales personnel, a material change in its business operations.

The findings stated that by the time the firm filed an application, it had exceeded the safe harbors for five months. The findings also stated that during the application process, before FINRA had the opportunity to render a decision on the firm's proposed expansion, it continued to add sales personnel until FINRA alerted the firm to its failure to comply with NASD Rule 1017. (FINRA Case #2008015429401)

Feltl & Company (CRD #6905, Minneapolis, Minnesota) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $15,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it made available reports on the covered orders in national market system securities that it received for execution from any person and reports on its routing of non-directed orders in covered securities that included incomplete data because the reports excluded trades routed through Bloomberg. The findings stated that the firm failed to make a report on its routing of non-directed orders in covered securities publicly available during a calendar quarter. The findings also stated that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable laws, regulations and FINRA rules, in particular Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Rules 605 and 606. (FINRA Case #2008015231501)

First Clearing, LLC (CRD #17344, St. Louis, Missouri) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $15,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that, as a reporting agent on reporting members' behalf, it transmitted numerous reports to the Order Audit Trail System (OATS™) that contained inaccurate, incomplete or improperly formatted data; the reports contained inaccurate destination codes and omitted others. (FINRA Case #2008013916601)

First London Securities Corporation (CRD #29709, Dallas, Texas) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $20,000. Goldman, Sachs & Co. (CRD #361, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $15,000. H&R Block Financial Advisors, Inc. nka Ameriprise Financial Services, Inc. (CRD #5979, Detroit, Michigan) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $175,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that, through a former registered representative, it executed unsuitable variable annuity (VA) contract replacements or “switches” involving customers. The findings stated that the VA switch transactions the representative recommended and executed were unsuitable because the benefit to the firm customers from these transactions did not outweigh the substantial costs they incurred selling their old VAs and the significant disadvantages to them in purchasing the new VAs. The findings also stated that, as a result of these replacements, customers paid in excess of $240,000 in surrender charges, and the firm earned over $215,000 in gross commissions. The findings also included that registered representatives at the firm who sell VA products must enter information about the transactions into a firm order-entry system, and the information is captured in a transaction detail report; the firm failed to retain some of the reports for the representative’s transactions.

FINRA found that registered representatives who sold VAs were required to complete an annuity suitability review form in which the registered representative identified the funding method for the VA purchase, indicated whether there would be a planned distribution of assets that would trigger a contingent deferred sales charge, and responded whether the customer in question was older than 70 years of age, but the firm failed to retain annuity suitability review forms in connection with the same customer transactions. (FINRA Case #2007009442501)

Hold Brothers On-Line Investment Services L.L.C. (CRD #36816, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $25,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it transmitted Reportable Order Events (ROEs) to OATS that OATS rejected for context or syntax errors, but the firm failed to repair most of them, so the firm failed to transmit them during that period. The findings stated that the firm failed to enforce its written supervisory procedures which specified that the OATS administrator or designee would monitor rejections on a daily basis and repair and re-submit the rejections as soon as possible. (FINRA Case #2008013950101)

Ingalls & Snyder, LLC (CRD #2288, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $20,000. KDC Merger Arbitrage Fund, LP (CRD #10019, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $350,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that employees in its securities lending department knowingly made false entries into the firm’s system indicating that finders had been used to locate securities or counterparties when in fact the finders had performed no legitimate services. The findings stated that this caused the firm to make payments to those purported finders and the finders subsequently paid a portion of their ill-gotten payments directly to the firm employees who made the finder entries into the firm's system. The findings also stated that these employees were indicted for their activities and pled guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit wire fraud, and another firm employee also caused the firm to pay finders in transactions for which he knew or should have known that the finders performed no services, but he was not criminally charged. The findings also included that the firm's written procedures and guidelines addressing the firm's use of finders were inadequate and that, while the firm's procedures required a supervisor to review securities lending transactions on a daily basis, the procedures did not provide guidance to supervisors who assumed that responsibility; the procedures did not instruct the stock loan supervisors as to what they were to look for in reviewing transaction reports, how to determine what stock loan activity, including rates, was to be flagged as suspicious, how they were to review documents, how to maintain documentation of the reviews, or how they were to follow up on any suspicious activity they discovered.

FINRA found that the firm kept insufficient documentary evidence to establish that a supervisor adequately reviewed the firm's securities lending activities. FINRA also found that the firm had no written procedures requiring supervisory review of electronic communications or addressing how the supervisor of the securities lending department should review employees' communications with other employees, counterparties or finders. In addition, FINRA determined that the firm created and maintained books and records that inaccurately reflected that finders had participated in stock loan transactions and were paid for services rendered when, in certain instances, finders had not performed any function relating to the transactions and had not rendered services to justify the payments. Moreover, FINRA found that the firm failed to retain, as required, email sent and received via its primary corporate email system and an additional email system and failed to retain, as required, electronic communications using an instant messaging system. (FINRA Case #2007010580901)

MF Global Inc. (CRD #6731, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured, fined $11,000 and required to revise its written supervisory procedures regarding Trade Reporting and Compliance Engine™ (TRACE™) reporting. The findings stated that the firm failed to report transactions in TRACE-eligible securities to TRACE within 15 minutes of execution. The findings also stated that the firm failed to show the correct execution time on its trade blotter for transactions for the firm's account with another broker or dealer. The findings also included that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable laws, regulations and FINRA rules concerning TRACE reporting. (FINRA Case #2008013307501)

Murphy & Durieu (CRD #6292, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $13,500. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed, within 90 seconds after execution, to transmit last sale reports of transactions in OTC equity securities to the OTCRF, and failed to designate some of them as late. The findings stated that the firm failed to report the correct execution time to the OTCRF for some of the late last sale reports. The findings also stated that the firm failed to report information regarding transactions effected in municipal securities to RTRS within 15 minutes of trade time to an RTRS Portal. The findings also stated that the firm improperly reported information to the RTRS that it should not have; the inter-dealer deliveries were “step outs” and thus, were not inter-dealer transactions that were reportable to the RTRS. (FINRA Case #2008015256601)

Murphy & Durieu (CRD #6292, New York, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $75,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it sold stock shares of issuers that were not registered with the SEC for which no exemption from registration applied, which generated, through the transactions, proceeds of approximately $790,000 for customers; and failed to conduct a “searching inquiry” to ensure that the sales did not violate Section 5 of the Securities Act. The findings stated that the firm failed to establish and maintain a supervisory system, including written supervisory procedures, reasonably designed to ensure compliance with applicable rules and regulations regarding the distribution of unregistered and non-exempt securities, and, in particular, its acceptance of the delivery of stock shares in certificate form and its subsequent sales of the same. The findings also stated that the firm’s written supervisory procedures did not require an inquiry to be conducted into whether deposited stock shares were registered with the SEC or exempt from registration. The findings also included that the firm failed to identify activity in corporate accounts as suspicious, investigate it and report it through Form SAR-SF filings and, therefore, failed to implement or enforce its AML program by failing to identify suspicious activity, properly investigate it and file a Form SAR-SF on such activity, as appropriate. (FINRA Case #2008013233001)

Mutual Money Investments, Inc. (CRD #32458, Houston, Texas) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured, fined $25,000, ordered to pay $10,047.79, plus interest, in restitution to investors, and required to revise its written supervisory procedures regarding the fair pricing of securities. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it sold corporate bonds to customers and failed to sell the bonds at a price that was fair, taking into consideration all relevant circumstances, including market conditions with respect to each bond at the time of the transaction, the expense involved and that the firm was entitled to a profit. The findings stated that the firm’s supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws, regulations and FINRA rules concerning the fair pricing of securities. (FINRA Case #2005002341901)

NBC Securities, Inc. (CRD #17870, Birmingham, Alabama) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured and fined $20,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it misreported corporate debt step-out transactions to TRACE; the transactions were not required to be reported and had been reported by another entity, causing them to be dually-reported. The findings stated that the firm failed to establish and maintain a system to properly supervise the reporting of TRACE-eligible securities. (FINRA Case #2008011606301)

Security Research Associates, Inc. (CRD #8200, Larkspur, California) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured, fined $10,000 and required to revise its written supervisory procedures regarding compliance with OATS reporting rules. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it failed to timely report ROEs to OATS and transmitted Route or Combined Order/Route Reports to OATS that the OATS system was unable to link to the corresponding new order the destination member firm transmitted due to inaccurate, incomplete or improperly formatted data. The findings stated that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws, regulations and FINRA rules concerning compliance with OATS reporting rules. (FINRA Case #2008013562501)

UBS Financial Services Inc. (CRD #8174, Weehawken, New Jersey) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which the firm was censured, fined $17,000 and required to pay $1,620.25, plus interest, in restitution to an investor. The firm made restitution totaling $6,583.60 for the other customer transactions and for which no additional restitution is required. Without admitting or denying the findings, the firm consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that it purchased or sold municipal securities as agent for a customer for a commission or service charge that was in excess of a fair and reasonable amount, taking into consideration all relevant factors, including the availability of the securities involved in the transaction; the expense of executing or filling the customer's order; the value of the services rendered by the broker, dealer or municipal securities dealer; and the amount of any other compensation received or to be received by the broker, dealer or municipal securities dealer in connection with the transaction. (FINRA Case #2008014720301)

The findings stated that the firm failed to report information regarding purchase and sale transactions effected in municipal securities to the RTRS in the manner prescribed by MSRB Rule G-14 RTRS Procedures and the RTRS Users Manual; the firm failed to report information about such transactions within 15 minutes of trade time to an RTRS Portal. The findings also stated that the firm failed to report the correct trade date to the RTRS for a few reports of transactions in municipal securities. The findings also included that the firm's supervisory system did not provide for supervision reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws, regulations and MSRB rules concerning municipal securities reporting. (FINRA Case #2009018434001)

timestamp for the related subsequent report occurred prior to the receipt of the order. The findings stated that the firm transmitted ROEs to OATS that OATS rejected for context or syntax errors and were repairable, but the firm failed to repair many of the rejected ROEs, so the firm failed to transmit them to OATS. The findings also stated that the firm incorrectly reported the second leg of many “riskless” principal transactions as “agent” to the NASD/NASDAQ Trade Reporting Facility (NNTRF) or the FNTRF. (FINRA Case #2008012765401)

Without admitting or denying the findings, Brady consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that he converted a total of $194,424.81 from customers who entrusted him with money to invest and, instead, misappropriated the funds for his own personal use. The findings also stated that in one instance, Brady created a fictitious account statement that falsely showed that the customer's account increased from about $37,000 to over $48,000 in one year; but, in fact, Brady never invested the customer's money and had converted over $56,000 of the customer's money to his personal use. The findings stated that Brenowitz falsified clients' insurance policy-related supplement documents without the clients' knowledge, submitted the documents to his firm's insurance affiliate and, although the clients later stated that they approved of his actions, the firm's insurance affiliate policy prohibited its insurance agents from signing another person's name, even if the clients' authorized them. The findings also stated that Brenowitz falsely endorsed and deposited a check for $1,000 made payable to an insurance agent contracted to him into his personal bank account, and falsely claimed to his firm that the insurance agent authorized him to use the check to repay expenses. The findings also included that Brenowitz took an online computer examination on his office manager's behalf that his firm's insurance company affiliate required, and Brenowitz falsely denied to his firm that he did so.

FINRA found that Brenowitz, in written response to FINRA, denied he took any test posing as his office manager and, during his sworn testimony provided to FINRA, denied he took any test posing as his office manager and claimed that the insurance agent contracted to him had authorized him to endorse and deposit the check and use the proceeds for expense reimbursement. (FINRA Case #2008013450201)

The findings also stated that Collins accomplished his payment of the fees when he executed money orders on the customers' behalf, forged the customers' signatures on the money orders and submitted the money orders to the firm to pay the variable annuity fees that he had not disclosed to the customers.

The findings stated that Jones engaged in a variety of fraudulent and deceptive sales practices and disregarded his duties and obligations of fair dealing to his customers. The findings also stated that Jones knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that the hedge fund was engaging in a highly speculative trading strategy involving futures contracts and that information the hedge fund manager supplied, which Jones used, contained materially false and misleading statements and omissions, including a pending Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) fraud action against the hedge fund manager, the fund's theoretical and unproven performance figures, the highly speculative nature of the FINRA also found that, while registered at a different member firm, Marsh borrowed $3,500 and $5,600 from another customer, and the firm's procedures specifically prohibited registered representatives from borrowing money from customers. In addition, FINRA determined that Marsh did not inform the firm of this loan, which was repaid, and falsely represented on the firm's Annual Compliance Certification Questionnaire that she had not borrowed money from a customer.

Michael Alcide Poutre II (CRD #2482252, Registered Principal, Woodland Hills, California) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 30 days. In light of Poutre's financial status, no monetary sanctions were imposed. Without admitting or denying the findings, Poutre consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that he placed orders for the sale of corporate bonds and placed charges on the orders for markups, which were not fair and reasonable, in consideration of the factors set forth in NASD Interpretative Material 2440(b). The findings stated that Poutre solicited securities transactions in actively traded, liquid corporate bond transactions for customers and charged the customers markups or markdowns that exceeded 3 percent and $400; most of the transactions were large and, because they involved corporate bonds, a markup or markdown over 3 percent would be considered excessive. The findings also stated that the corporate bonds involved were readily available and involved large transactions of higher priced securities, which justified lower percentage rates. The findings also included that the markups and markdowns were not disclosed to the customers and the number of violative transactions established a pattern of excessive markups and markdowns, and nothing in Poutre's or his member firm's business activities justified the markups or markdowns of over 3 percent.

The suspension was in effect from August 2, 2010, through August 31, 2010. (FINRA Case #2008011759201)

Craig Lee Randall (CRD #1583963, Registered Principal, Fountain Valley, California) submitted an Offer of Settlement in which he was censured, fined $35,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for seven months. Without admitting or denying the allegations, Randall consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he used a a firm-approved presentation during retail seminars with customers that contained misleading, exaggerated and unwarranted statements, despite his knowledge that FINRA had determined that the presentation violated NASD advertising rules and should not be used; the firm had received a Letter of Caution from FINRA regarding the presentation. The findings stated that Randall subsequently sought employment with another firm and submitted the presentation to that firm for approval with the intention of using it there; the proposed presentation was modified but still contained much of the violative content he had previously used. The findings also stated that at such time, Randall knowingly failed to disclose that FINRA had determined that the presentation violated NASD advertising rules and had notified his prior firm of the violations on several occasions, including the Letter of Caution. The findings also included that while employed with the firm, Randall distributed the presentation to other registered representatives to use with their own potential customers.

The suspension is in effect from August 16, 2010, through March 15, 2011. (FINRA Case #2008013152301)

James Michael Rapuano Jr. (CRD #4900969, Registered Representative, Branford, Connecticut) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the findings, Rapuano consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that he made oral and written misrepresentations to a customer at his member firm regarding the value of the customer's account. The findings stated that Rapuano told the customer that the monthly account statements were inaccurate and the account balance was greater than what appeared on the statements, which was not true; the monthly account statements were accurate. The findings also stated that Rapuano provided the customer with a false monthly account statement that was in partial form, in that it only contained the first page showing the total values of the opening and closing cash and securities positions in the account for that period. The findings also included that Rapuano prepared the false statement by taking the first page of the customer's monthly statement from a prior month and altering the dates. FINRA found that Rapuano also misrepresented to the customer that the larger account value reflected on the altered statement represented his actual balance. (FINRA Case #2010021463201)

Stephen N. Richards (CRD #4195178, Registered Representative, Houston, Texas) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the findings, Richards consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that he made a series of changes to the account of a deceased customer, including changing the account address to that of his member firm, the name on the account, and an instruction on the account in order to allow redemptions to be wired to his personal account. The findings stated that Richards effected mutual fund redemptions from the account and made corresponding wire transactions to his personal account totaling $38,194.38. The findings also stated that Richards used his own login ID and those of his colleagues, without their knowledge or permission, to process these transactions. (FINRA Case #2009016955001)

Domenic Carlo Ruggiero (CRD #3011030, Registered Representative, Middleburg Heights, Ohio) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the findings, Ruggiero consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that, in his capacity as a financial consultant with his member firm, he did not have authority or approval to sign or issue Letters of Credit, but he signed a Letter of Credit on the letterhead of the firm's predecessor in the amount of $55,000 and gave it to a customer without the firm's knowledge or authorization. The findings stated that Ruggiero signed another Letter of Credit on the firm's letterhead in the amount of $75,000 and gave it to the customer without the firm's knowledge or authorization. The findings also stated that the beneficiaries of these Letters of Credit presented them to a bank, an affiliate of the firm, for payment. The findings also included that Ruggiero's issuance of the unauthorized Letters of Credit to the customer caused the firm to pay a sum of money to the beneficiaries as part of a settlement in connection with the unauthorized Letters of Credit. FINRA found that Ruggiero failed to appear for a FINRA on-the-record interview. (FINRA Case #2008015794901)

John Michael Elias Saad (CRD #2185911, Registered Principal, Atlanta, Georgia) was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. The SEC affirmed the sanction following Saad's appeal of the NAC decision. The sanction was based on findings that Saad submitted false expense reimbursement reports and receipts to his member firm's parent company, which resulted in $1,144 in payments that were made to him, to which he was not entitled, and that Saad misappropriated firm funds.

This decision has been appealed to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, and the bar is in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case #2006006705601)

Anne Marie Schlenker, aka Anne Marie Rippy (CRD #4536970, Registered Representative, Bozeman, Montana) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which she was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the findings, Schlenker consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that she made unauthorized withdrawals and transfers totaling approximately $265,800 from customers' accounts to accounts she controlled, and converted these funds for her own use and benefit. (FINRA Case #2010021961801)

William Gregory Slonecker (CRD #3048481, Registered Representative, Nashville, Tennessee) was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. The sanction was based on findings that Slonecker recommended and executed unsuitable variable annuity contract replacements or switches involving customers without regard for their age or financial backgrounds, and received $85,000 in commissions. The findings stated that Slonecker's customers received no significant benefit from the transactions but incurred substantial surrender charges, new extended surrender periods and, in some cases, paid additional fees. The findings also stated that Slonecker made numerous false entries in his member firm's electronic order-entry system and on other firm records to obtain approval for the switches he recommended to the customers, causing his firm to create and maintain inaccurate books and records. The findings also stated that Slonecker's false entries in the firm's electronic order-entry system and suitability questionnaires were material false representations he made to his firm. The findings also included that Slonecker falsely represented to customers that surrender fees associated with the switches would be fully recovered by the bonuses they would receive from their purchases of new variable annuity contracts, when he knew or should have known that the bonuses did not offset the surrender fees and he failed to disclose and explain to the customers the surrender charges associated with switch transactions. FINRA found that Slonecker failed to respond to FINRA requests for information. (FINRA Case #2007009442501)

Anna Maria Somoza (CRD #1599663, Registered Representative, Key Biscayne, Florida) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which she was fined $5,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 30 days. The fine must be paid either immediately upon Somoza's reassociation with a FINRA member firm following her suspension, or prior to the filing of any application or request for relief from any statutory disqualification, whichever is earlier. Without admitting or denying the findings, Somoza consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that, after deciding to resign from her member firm to join another FINRA member firm, she used her broker workstation to change certain of her customers' telephone numbers to incorrect numbers and deleted several email addresses in her firm's electronic database, causing the firm to create and maintain inaccurate books and records. The findings stated that Somoza made these changes without the customers' knowledge or authorization, and she was aware that the firm's policies prohibited firm employees from making false and misleading entries in its books and records. The findings also stated that Somoza admitted to the firm that she made the changes because she did not want anyone at the firm calling her clients after she left the firm. The findings also included that the firm immediately terminated Somoza's employment.

The suspension was in effect from August 16, 2010, through September 14, 2010.

The findings stated that Stone failed to appear for a FINRA on-the-record interview. (FINRA Case #2009017554801)

Richard Joseph Stratman (CRD #5302491, Registered Representative, Hamilton, Ohio) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the findings, Stratman consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that, without permission and authority, he used a customer's bank account to electronically pay his own personal bills and expenses. The findings stated that Stratman took specific steps to misappropriate $4,713.50 but was only successful in converting $2,717.92 because the additional disbursements were prevented when the bank stopped payment on the transactions. The findings also stated that the bank compensated the customer and Stratman reimbursed the bank to cover the amounts the bank paid to the customer. The findings also included that Stratman wrongfully converted approximately $2,717.92 from the customer and attempted to wrongfully convert an additional $2,000. (FINRA Case #2009019569401)

Kristin Lea Tester (CRD #5478300, Registered Representative, Wapakoneta, Ohio) submitted an Offer of Settlement in which she was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the allegations, Tester consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that she affixed bank customers' signatures to an account signature card with their permission, which she later admitted to an internal bank inspector. The findings stated that Tester failed to respond to FINRA requests for information. (FINRA Case #2009019608301)

Steven Craig Vanderhoof (CRD #2306547, Registered Principal, Santa Ana, California) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was fined $10,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for 30 business days. Without admitting or denying the findings, Vanderhoof consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he established a corporation and a website to market an “equity repositioning strategy” to investors, with the strategy calling for investors to obtain a loan for equity in a home, through mortgage refinancing or a home equity line of credit, and invest the loan proceeds with the goal of earning more through the investments than the cost of the loan, but a prime purpose in marketing this strategy was to sell mutual funds to investors through a firm he founded. The findings stated that Vanderhoof authored television advertisements that were false and misleading, and failed to provide a balanced discussion and disclose the name of the broker-dealer; and Vanderhoof failed to file the advertisements with FINRA’s Advertising Regulation department in violation of NASD Rule 2210(c)(2)(a) which required that advertisements concerning mutual funds be filed within 10 days of first use. The findings also stated that Vanderhoof designed and authored a website and made the publicly available website, which misleadingly failed to provide a balanced discussion of the risks associated with borrowing money through home equity loans to invest in securities, included false and misleading statements and claims and projected investment results, and was not filed with FINRA’s Advertising Regulation department. The findings also included that Vanderhoof authored an information brochure, which the firm’s registered representatives sent to potential customers, that contained the same advertising content violations and was not filed with FINRA’s Advertising Regulation department.

FINRA found that Vanderhoof approved the equity repositioning analysis for use with potential customers and caused it to be distributed to potential customers when the analysis failed to disclose the risks assumed when investors borrow money from their home to buy securities, contained statements and claims that were unwarranted or exaggerated, and made predictions or projections of investment performance. FINRA also found that Vanderhoof failed to ensure adequate review of the equity repositioning sales materials and failed to ensure that the firm established written supervisory procedures regarding the suitability of equity repositioning recommendations.

The suspension was in effect from August 2, 2010, through September 13, 2010. (FINRA Case #2007011152601)

Without admitting or denying the findings, Wicks consented to the described sanction and to the entry of findings that he misappropriated at least $449,119.17 from joint account holders at his member firm. The findings stated that $339,375.30 of the funds that Wicks took from the account holders were from checks for a purported investment in an annuity to be held outside of his firm’s family of companies. The findings also stated that Wicks did not make the investment and instead converted the funds to his personal use. The findings also included that Wicks converted the remaining $49,743.87 of the funds to his personal use from monies from the account holders that they intended to be applied to life insurance policy premium payments. FINRA found that Wicks was compensated through a non-firm insurance company for placing fixed insurance business through that firm, and he did not provide notice to his firm of this outside business activity. (FINRA Case #2009020835601)

Matthew K. Wilhelmi (CRD #5386900, Registered Representative, Lake in the Hills, Illinois) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was fined $5,000 and suspended from association with any FINRA member in any capacity for nine months. Without admitting or denying the findings, Wilhelmi consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that, while acting in his capacity as a personal banker for his firm's affiliated bank, he signed a customer's name on an account application, without the customer's knowledge or consent, to facilitate the opening of a checking account. The findings stated that Wilhelmi deposited his own money into the customer's account in order to keep the account active and eligible for a $100 bonus. The findings also stated that Wilhelmi accessed the account and paid personal credit card bills with the funds he had deposited.

The findings stated that, as a result of the forged documents, Wirick caused $41,505.57 to be transferred from one variable annuity policy to another without the customer's knowledge or consent. The findings also stated that the insurance company receiving the funds paid Wirick's member firm $2,282.80 in gross commissions. The findings also included that when the customer received a transfer confirmation reflecting the purchase of the variable annuity, the customer complained and the transaction was reversed; the commissions charged to the customer's account for the transfer were cancelled pursuant to the new variable annuity's "free look" provisions.

The suspension is in effect from August 16, 2010, through April 15, 2011. (FINRA Case #2009017601101)

Without admitting or denying the findings, Woznick consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he engaged in an outside business activity without providing prompt written notice to his member firm. The findings stated that Woznick engaged in a private securities transaction by selling his personal shares of a company's stock to a customer of his firm outside the scope of his employment with the firm, and failed to provide prior written notice of this private securities transaction to the firm. The findings also stated that Woznick failed to respond to FINRA requests for information.

Individuals Fined

Joseph Anthony Devito (CRD #1479780, Registered Principal, Cortlandt Manor, New York) submitted a Letter of Acceptance, Waiver and Consent in which he was censured and fined $10,000. Without admitting or denying the findings, Devito consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he failed to enforce his member firm's written supervisory procedures with respect to licensing, in that the procedures required designated supervisory principals to ensure that the associated persons they supervised were properly licensed. The findings stated that Devito failed to enforce the firm's written supervisory procedures by allowing a then-proprietary trader and associated person to disregard FINRA licensing requirements and the firm's internal licensing requirements applicable to its proprietary traders. The findings also stated that Devito failed to enforce written internal firm trading limits and failed to enforce firm written supervisory procedures concerning the imposition of individual trading limits on proprietary traders by failing to ensure that the individual and other relevant associated persons of the firm understood the meaning and application of the terms of individual trading limits, and by also allowing the associated person to exceed his individual trading limits on several occasions. (FINRA Case #2007008882403)

Without admitting or denying the findings, Dorval consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he established an account for a customer at his member firm for which he was the account representative. The findings stated that on various occasions Dorval entered trades in this account based on communications with an individual who was related to the customer although the individual did not have written trading authority over the account. The findings also stated that Dorval took instructions on the account from the individual without the customer's without written authorization; Dorval should not have accepted orders from the individual without appropriate written authority. The findings also included that Dorval's entry of trades at the individual's direction constituted an exercise of discretionary power in the account without having received the customer's proper written authorization to exercise discretion and without the firm having accepted the account as discretionary. (FINRA Case #2008013506501)

Decision Issued

The Office of Hearing Officers (OHO) issued the following decision, which has been appealed to or called for review by the NAC as of July 31, 2010. The NAC may increase, decrease, modify or reverse the findings and sanctions imposed in the decision. Initial decisions where the time for appeal has not yet expired will be reported in future issues of FINRA Disciplinary and Other Actions.

Edward Shea Brokaw (CRD #1162997, Registered Principal, Darien, Connecticut) was barred from association with any FINRA member in any capacity. The sanction was based on findings that Brokaw engaged in market manipulation of securities by placing sell orders near the open and close of the market on a hedge fund client's behalf. The findings stated that Brokaw placed orders to sell shares of the security at the open and close of the market to increase the value of the security's contingent value rights (CVRs) that Brokaw and an individual who controlled the hedge fund held. The findings also stated that Brokaw failed to ensure the preparation of order tickets reflecting the individual's sales of shares of the security, thereby causing his member firm's books and records to be inaccurate.

This decision has been appealed to the NAC and the sanction is not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (FINRA Case # 2007007792902)

FINRA Fines Deutsche Bank Securities $7.5 Million for Negligent Misrepresentations Related to Subprime Securitizations

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) announced that it has fined Deutsche Bank Securities Inc. $7.5 million for negligently misrepresenting delinquency data in connection with the issuance of subprime securities.

FINRA found that Deutsche Bank Securities negligently misrepresented and underreported the percentages of mortgages that were delinquent in the prospectus supplements of six subprime residential mortgage backed securities (MBS) issued in 2006. The firm also failed to correct errors by a third party vendor and servicers, which underreported the historical delinquency rates of the mortgages in connection with its offer and sale of 16 additional subprime MBS issued in 2007. Further, Deutsche Bank Securities failed to establish a system to supervise its reporting of required historical delinquency information.

“It is critically important that firms provide accurate information for their customers to use in evaluating investments,” said James S. Shorris, FINRA Executive Vice President and Acting Chief of Enforcement. “Future returns on subprime securitizations are affected by mortgage holders who fail to make loan payments. Delinquency rates constitute material information for investors. Deutsche Bank Securities’ failure to ensure that the delinquency information was accurate is an unacceptable failure to meet this important obligation.”

Delinquency rates constitute material information for MBS investments because that data affects the investor’s ability to evaluate the fair market value, the yields on the certificates and the anticipated holding periods of each of these securitizations. Investors may consider this information in assessing the profitability of these securitizations and in determining whether future returns would be disrupted by mortgage holders who fail to make loan payments.

During 2006 and 2007, Deutsche Bank Securities underwrote subprime MBS and sold them to institutional investors. FINRA found that in the prospectus supplements of six subprime securitizations worth approximately $2.2 billion offered in March 2006, the firm described a method of calculating delinquencies that was in fact different from the method it actually used. As a result, delinquencies were underreported. For example, in one MBS deal, Deutsche Bank Securities reported that under its described method of calculation, 8.75 percent of the loans were between 30 – 59 days delinquent, corresponding to $14 million in delinquent loans. But the actual delinquency numbers computed under the method Deutsche Bank Securities disclosed were significantly higher, with 24.02 percent of the loans between 30 and 59 days delinquent, corresponding to $38.5 million in delinquent loans.

FINRA also found that Deutsche Bank Securities negligently underreported historical delinquency rates on a website the firm maintained that was referenced in prospectus materials in connection with the sale of 16 MBS.

Issuers of subprime MBS are required to disclose historical performance information for prior securitizations that contain similar mortgage loans as collateral. That information, which includes historical delinquency rates, is called “static pool” information—and it is one of the disclosure requirements for asset-backed securities under Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Regulation AB. After Regulation AB became effective in December 2005, Deutsche Bank Securities prospectus supplements for new subprime MBS offerings informed investors they could view static pool information on the firm’s Regulation AB website.

In January 2007, Deutsche Bank Securities learned that the outside vendor it retained to populate its Regulation AB website was underreporting delinquencies as a result of errors made by the servicers responsible for tracking delinquencies. Deutsche Bank Securities was able to determine that these errors affected 16 securitizations and was able to provide corrected delinquency data for 13 of them to the vendor to use going forward. But the vendor failed to use the corrected data. The firm never ensured that the vendor posted the corrected static pool information and continued to refer investors to the inaccurate information about these 13 securitizations on the Regulation AB website. While Deutsche Bank Securities was not able to determine the extent to which delinquency rates were underreported in the remaining three affected securitizations, the firm continued to use this data without indicating on its Regulation AB website that the information was inaccurate.

In settling this matter, Deutsche Bank Securities neither admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of FINRA’s findings.

FINRA Orders SunTrust Investment Services to Pay $1.44 Million for Unsuitable UIT, Closed-End Fund and Mutual Fund Transactions

Sanction Includes $540,000 in Restitution to Disadvantaged Customers; Broker Barred in Separate Action, Former Branch Manager Suspended

The Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) has ordered SunTrust Investment Services, Inc. of Atlanta, GA, to pay $1.44 million to resolve charges related to unsuitable unit investment trust (UIT), closed-end fund (CEF) and mutual fund transactions. Of that amount, $900,000 is a fine that includes nearly $224,000 in disgorgement of commissions earned on the unsuitable trades. The remaining $540,000 represents restitution to 17 customers who incurred losses.

As part of this settlement, SunTrust must also review all UIT purchases and provide remediation to all eligible customers who did not receive the maximum sales charge discount.

“Firms must monitor for patterns of UIT and closed-end fund sales to ensure that such sales are suitable for the customer,” said James S. Shorris, FINRA Executive Vice President and Acting Chief of Enforcement. “SunTrust failed to meet that obligation, which caused its customers, including elderly customers, to incur significant losses.”

FINRA found that SunTrust, through two brokers in the firm's Maryland Region, engaged in a pattern of unsuitable short-term UIT, CEF and mutual fund transactions in accounts of 17 customers, most of whom were elderly and/or disabled. The brokers also engaged in unsuitable margin transactions in the accounts of 10 of the 17 customers. In addition, FINRA found that SunTrust failed to ensure that eligible customers received the maximum sales charge discount on UIT purchases and lacked adequate systems and procedures for monitoring and supervising UIT, CEF and margin transactions.

FINRA previously sanctioned one of the individual brokers involved in this matter, David Bredenburg of Timonium, MD, permanently barring him from working in the securities industry. FINRA has filed a complaint against the second broker, charging him with numerous violations, including unsuitable recommendations, sales and use of margin; failure to provide maximum sales charge discounts on UIT transactions; and, engaging in discretionary trading in customer accounts without written authorization. FINRA also suspended the two brokers' former supervisor, Donald Mattran of Bel Air, MD, for six months in any principal capacity and fined him $10,000.

FINRA found that between February 2004 and November 2006, SunTrust, through Bredenburg and, it is alleged, the second broker, recommended 294 unsuitable short-term UIT, CEF and mutual fund transactions in the accounts of 17 customers. The two brokers repeatedly recommended that the customers sell UITs and CEFs less than one year—and sometimes as soon as one month—after purchasing the securities at the broker's recommendation, with little or no economic benefit to the customer.

FINRA further found that SunTrust, through the two brokers, recommended to 10 of those customers unsuitable purchases and sales of securities on margin—failing to adequately disclose the risks and costs of trading on margin and lacking a reasonable basis for their recommendations. As a result, the customers paid over $133,000 in margin interest.

FINRA also found that SunTrust lacked adequate systems and procedures to monitor UIT and CEF transactions and margin accounts, and to ensure that customers purchasing UITs received applicable sales charge discounts.

Furthermore, FINRA found that between February 2004 and December 2005, Mattran and SunTrust approved each short-term transaction, including transactions placed using margin, and did not respond adequately to red flags suggesting that the transactions were unsuitable. For example, the trade blotter listed over 200 sales of UITs and CEFs among the 17 customers' accounts and compliance reviews in August 2004 and April 2005 alerted Mattran and the firm to questionable short-term UIT and CEF transactions by both brokers.

FINRA's action barring Bredenburg found that between February 2004 and March 2009—while he was registered first with SunTrust and later with Merrill Lynch—Bredenburg recommended at least 167 unsuitable short-term UIT and CEF transactions, including switches, to 13 customers who were elderly, retired or disabled and who had conservative to moderate investment profiles. He also recommended unsuitable transactions on margin and unsuitable variable annuity liquidations. FINRA further found that Bredenburg failed to disclose to customers the costs and fees associated with short-term CEF and UIT transactions, failed to ensure that customers received maximum sales charge discounts on UIT purchases and engaged in discretionary trading without prior written authorization.

In addition, FINRA found that between August 2008 and February 2009, while registered with Merrill Lynch, Bredenburg accessed a customer's Merrill Lynch brokerage account through the internet and, without the customer's knowledge, transferred funds from the customer's account to pay Bredenburg's personal expenses, including mortgage, car loan and credit cards. Merrill Lynch has compensated firm customers affected by Bredenburg's misconduct.

In concluding these settlements, SunTrust, Bredenburg and Mattran neither admitted nor denied the charges, but consented to the entry of FINRA's findings. FINRA's charges against the second broker alleged to be involved are pending.

Mattran's suspension is in effect from August 16, 2010, through February 15, 2011.
